Meet up with some friends for an amazing riverside brunch at Café Nuovo, just a few blocks away from your front door. With an attentive staff, beautifully prepared dishes, and an unbeatable view, this waterfront restaurant is perfect for showing off your new neighborhood.

🍴 Dinner

A FOODIE'S STROLL DOWN FEDERAL HILL

Long considered one of the best places in New England to get authentic Italian cuisine, Atwells Ave on Federal Hill is teeming with historic eateries, seafood shops, pizzerias, and pastry shops. Our recommendation? Grab some pasta at Andino's and finish it off with a famous almond cupcake from Scialo Bros Bakery.

🍷 Drinks

DOWNCITY DRINKS

Once you've eaten your fill, make your way downcity, where bars, restaurants, theaters, culture, and nightlife take over the streets after sunset. For a tasteful pub experience, check out the GPub, a downcity modern gastropub that specializes in seasonal craft cocktails and heartwarming foods.

Ever since the day it was established in 1636, Providence has been a place of unbridled self-expression and ingenious tenacity. Founded by a man fleeing from religious persecution in the Massachusetts Bay Colony, Providence, from day-one, has been a place of liberty, industry, and creativity.

In the 1800s, Providence was one of the first American cities to industrialize, earning its nickname, “the beehive of industry”—a status that quickly made Providence a major economic focal point on the East Coast.

In the 20th Century, as the world shifted toward more service-based economy, the old industrial warehouses started getting taken over by a new kind of culture: the Rhode Island School of Design (RISD) and Brown University brought in a whole world of intellectuals and creative spirits, who quickly made Providence a cultural hotbed for everything from art galleries to live performance.

Today, Providence is in the midst of another renaissance—one rooted in timeless sensibilities that the people of Providence have embraced for decades: farm-to-table eateries, intimate coffee shops, world-class shopping, and five-star cultural institutions have made Providence the most livable small city in the East—while earning the city a new nickname: “the Creative Capital.”

UP ON COLLEGE HILL

Just over the river, less than 3 minutes away, is Providence's most artistic and intellectual neighborhood: College Hill. Home to Brown University and RISD (The Rhode Island School of Design), this tiny hill is home to the city's artists and creatives, who have built a warm and eclectic community out of its brownstone-littered streets.

A LITTLE ITALY IN FEDERAL HILL

Just an 8 minute drive away, Atwells Ave in Federal Hill is arguably the best place in New England to grab a bite of authentic Italian food. With a dense cluster of award-winning local eateries that have been serving family recipes for generations, Federal Hill will be a regular grub stop for any foodie.

LIFE ALONG THE RIVER

Discover the most picturesque sights of the city just outside the doors of Station Row. The Riverwalk, a Providence must-visit, is a riverside path that winds through the city, and was extended to run right by Station Row. Check out the world-famous yearly Waterfire Festival, or make your way across the canal to enjoy the local shops, eateries, and iconic picturesque brownstones that line Main Street and historic Benefit Street.
